Mr. Care goes on to say, can be engaged to go from Canton to Lungchow for $100; which makes the freight less than 50 cents a picul. The only reason native merchants do not use this route now is on account of the heavy lekin charges on the way. Between Canton and Wuchow there are no less than ten lekin stations where boats have to stop, and between Wuchow and Nanning there are six. Not content with this, the whole of the trade. Meanwhile the province draws its supplies through Pakhoi.

Mengizu makes a very different showing in the returns. The Red River is the natural' trade route for South-Eastern Yunnan, and now that the navigability of that stream has been proved trade may be expected to rapidly increase. The returns for export, Tls. 7,330 , opium, Tls. 92 ; touwage

Tis. 11; and transity Tis. 1,528. In the April-June quarter the figures were :- Import duty, Tls. 3,376; export, Tls. 4,614; opium, Tla. 297; tonnage, Tls. 14; transit,

Tls. 1,867; total, Tls. 10,169. If the trade has continued on the same scale during the second half of the year, the Customs revenue of the station for the year will amount to over Tis. 45,000, representing a value for the whole trade of probably not far short of Tls. 1,000,000.

This appears small when compared with the trade of most of the open ports, but the prospects are at least as promising as they were at Pakhoi on the opening of that port, and it will be surprising if the next few vears do not see a large development. At
